Amrize Expands Memphis Terminal for American-Made Cement

MEMPHIS, Tenn., November 16, 2026 – Amrize (NYSE: AMRZ) is investing to expand and modernize its Memphis Cement Terminal, and today hosted Memphis Mayor Paul Young, local officials, customers and community partners for a project open house.

The project will strengthen Amrize's logistics network across the Tri-State Area to support local builders with American-made cement from Amrize's flagship plant in Ste. Genevieve, Missouri. The expansion will support infrastructure, commercial and residential construction growth in Western Tennessee, Eastern Arkansas and Northern Mississippi.

"Our investment in the Memphis terminal reflects Amrize's commitment to be the local partner of choice supporting our customers with American-made materials," said Patrick Cleary, Chief Commercial Officer, Cement at Amrize Building Materials. "This modernization further strengthens our distribution and logistics network, ensuring builders have reliable, efficient supply of high performance building materials for their most demanding projects."

"Amrize has helped build Memphis for decades, and this $16 million investment reflects their continued confidence in our city and its future," said Mayor Paul Young. "As we work to expand housing, attract new development, and grow our regional economy, strong partners like Amrize are essential. We appreciate their commitment to Memphis and the communities they help serve."

To be completed in the summer of 2027, the project will include a new 4,000 ton elevated storage silo engineered to expand capacity and introduce advanced materials to the region, including first-to-market Grade 100 Slag Cement. The project will also add a second automated self-service loading bay and improve waterway barge access on the Mississippi to streamline customer logistics.

With a legacy of supplying cement to the Tri-State Area for over 40 years, the Amrize Memphis Terminal has helped shape many of the region's landmark infrastructure and commercial projects, including the Frederick W. Smith International Airport expansion, the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital expansion and The Guest House at Graceland.
